Why H. S. Stout Succeeds.

Here are a few reasons why H. S. Stout has succeeded in building up the largest tailoring business in Paris:

FIRST—He recognized the fact that five years ago that the only day of big profits and small sales was past.

SECOND—He cuts the price of tailor-made garments at least 40 PER CENT.

THIRD—He kept up the quality of his materials, his styles and his workmanship.

FOURTH—He always does as he advertised.

AS A RESULT.

As a result of this system he has built up a large trade that appreciates the fact that they save twenty dollars on a single suit or overcoat. "Many customers at a small profit rather than a few customers at a big profit," says H. S. Stout.

If you want credit, your high-price tailor gladly extends it, for he makes you pay dearly for it in the end.

Why not turn over a new leaf—wear the best, save money, by giving H. S. Stout a trial?

He makes the Finest Imported Suits for $30.00 AND $35.00.

THERE are eggs and eggs. The egg of yesterday looks, feels, measures and weighs like the egg of last month, but there's a difference in another respect, and that difference is worth money. Its just so with laundry. The difference between good work and poor is slight to the unpracticed discernment, but it's a difference that counts every time. It's a difference that changes your laundry bill from an expense to an investment. We do good work—it will cost no more than poor work but its worth double the difference.

FIERCE BATTLE

Spaniards Make An Attack on Americans at Malate, Philippine Islands.

Gen. Merritt's Troops Win a Grand Victory—The Enemy's Loss 200 Killed and 300 Wounded—American Loss in Killed and Wounded.

MANILA BAY, Aug. 4, via Hong Kong, Aug. 10.—On the night of July 31 at 11 o'clock the Spaniards made a concerted sortie from Manila upon the outposts and trenches of Camp Dewey, near Malate, Gen. Greene commanding. The attack was directed at the American right flank, held by the 10th Pennsylvania troops. Ten men were killed in the trenches and on the picket lines and 44 wounded.

The British admiral reports the Spanish loss to be 350 killed and 900 wounded.

Greene's force numbers 4,000 men. His line has been advancing and intrenching.

The arrival of the third expedition filled the Spaniards with rage and they determined to give battle before Camp Dewey could be reinforced.

The trenches extended from the beach 300 yards to the left flank of the insurgents. Sunday was insurgent feast day, and their left flank withdrew, leaving the American right flank exposed.

Companies A and F, 10th Pennsylvania, and the Utah battery were ordered to reinforce the right flank. In the midst of a raging typhoon, with a tremendous downpour of rain, the enemy's force, 3,000 men, attempted to surprise the American camp. Our pickets were driven in and the trenches assaulted.

The brave Pennsylvania men never flinched, but stood their ground under a withering fire. The alarm spread, and the 1st California regiment, with two companies of the 3d artillery, who fight with rifles, were sent up to reinforce the Pennsylvanians.

The enemy was on top of the trenches when these reinforcements arrived, and never was the discipline of the regulars better demonstrated than by the work of the 3d artillery, under Capt. O'Hara. Nothing could be seen but the flashes of the Mause rifles.

The men ran right up, attacking the Spaniards, and mowed them down with regular volleys. The Utah battery, under Capt. Young, covered itself with glory. The men pulled their guns through mud axle deep. Two guns were sent around in flank and poured in a destructive enfilading fire.

The enemy was repulsed and retreated in disorder. Our infantry had exhausted their ammunition and did not follow the enemy.

During flashes of lightning the dead and wounded could be seen lying in blood-red water, but neither the elements of heaven nor the destructive power of man could wring a cry of protest from the wounded.

The American dead were buried next day in the convent of Marican.

On the night of August 1 fighting was renewed, but the enemy had been taught a lesson, and made an attack at long range with heavy artillery. The Utah battery replied, and the artillery duel lasted an hour.

One man was killed. He was Fred Springstead, of the 1st Colorado, and two men wounded.

On the night of August 2 the artillery duel was renewed.

Two men were badly wounded and are this morning reported dead. This brings the total dead to 13, with ten in the hospital mortally hurt.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The following is Gen. Merritt's dispatch, as given out at the war department:

Hong-Kong, Adjutant General, Washington: MacArthur's troops arrived July 31. No epidemic sickness. Five deaths. Lieut. Kerr, engineer, died of spinal meningitis. Landing at camp delayed on account of high surf. To gain approach to city Greene's outposts were advanced to continue lines from the camino real (public road), Cavite, on Sunday night. Spanish attacked sharply. Artillery outposts behaved well; held position. Unnecessary to call out brigade. Spanish loss rumored heavy.

WHAT FORTY AMERICANS DID

In Porto Rico They Drove Back Eight Hundred Spaniards With Heavy Loss—Two Hours' Fight.

CAPE SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, via St. Thomas, D. W. I., Aug. 11.—There was a two hour's fight before daybreak Tuesday. Eight hundred Spaniards attempted to retake the lighthouse, which was guarded by 40 of our sailors, commanded by Lieut. Atwater, Assistant Engineer Jenkins, Ensign Bronson and Gunner Campbell. The Spaniards were driven back by shells from the Amphitrite, Cincinnati and Leyden. Refugees report that 100 Spaniards were killed.

William H. Boardman, of the Amphitrite, of Lawrence, Mass., a second classman in the naval academy, was seriously wounded. He was in the lighthouse.

The Spanish advance began from Rio Grande, whither the Spaniards had retreated after the first landing of troops at Cape San Juan last week. They marched through Luquillo and pulled down the American flag at Fajardo and replaced the Spanish flag.

The ships landed 250 men during the fight and re-enforced the lighthouse. A machine gun, rifles and ammunition were left by the retreating Spaniards. Our flag is still on the lighthouse, but the force has been withdrawn.

The Amphitrite's guns cover the lighthouse, ready to annihilate it if our flag is hauled down. It is one of the most important lights on the island.

The Cincinnati has gone to the San Juan blockade.

THE KEY MONUMENT. Which was unveiled at Frederick City, Md.

Sent an Apology and a Check.

BRAZIL, Ind., Aug. 11.—Thirty years ago Ed Green and Berry James lived on adjoining farms in this county. One day a calf belonging to James got into Green's cornfield and Green threw it over the fence, breaking its neck. This incensed James and he gave Green a good thrashing and the latter prosecuted his assailant and forced him to pay a fine. Immediately after the occurrence Green moved to Seattle, Wash., and just before his death a few days ago he called in a lawyer, instructed him to write James an apology and inclosed a check for $30, which covered the fine and interest which James paid for thrashing him thirty years ago.

The Onondaga Leaves Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 11.—The revenue cutter Onondaga left the Globe shipyard Wednesday for Ogdensburg, N. Y. The Onondaga was launched December 23, 1897. She is 205 feet long, 32 feet beam and 900 tons displacement. She is a sister ship to the Algonquin and Gresham. It is believed that after she receives her armament at the Boston navy yard she will be ordered into Cuban waters.

A Fight in Court.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 11.—Martin Holloran, a witness in a divorce suit in the criminal court Wednesday, took exception to a question asked by Attorney James Mershon and made a dash at him to thrash him. The lawyer proved too good, and, after knocking Holloran down, wiped up the courtroom with him. Judge Barker then fined Holloran $30, with 24 hours in jail, saying he was to blame.

Two Killed by a Train.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 11.—While standing on the Michigan Central track watching a train on an adjoining track Wednesday night, David L. Greenman, aged 23, and Donnie Finnegan, aged 14, were both struck by a train and killed. Greenman was killed instantly, but the boy lived about three hours. Greenman was an employee of the road.

Dropped Dead on a Troop Ship.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 11.—John H. Lane, storekeeper of the United States transport Minnewaske, dropped dead on his boat here Wednesday. The troop ship was waiting to carry the 3d regiment of immunes to Santiago. Lane was 55 years of age and the father of Capt. Lane, of the 9th police precinct, New York.

Secretary Day's Brother.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—A commission has been issued by Adj. Gen. Kingsley to Ralph Day, a brother of Secretary of State Day, as quartermaster of the 1st O. V. C. He succeeds T. S. Grasselli, who is made brigade quartermaster.

The San Francisco Labor Council has adopted resolutions opposing the annexation of the Philippines on the ground that the conditions existing there would be a menace to our government and would especially injure the working people.

WERE LYNCHED.

Five Bodies, Two Men and Three Women, Swings From the Limbs of Trees.

The Wife of Orr Was Implicated in the Cruel Murder, and Was Arrested and Placed in Jail, Where She Committed Suicide.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 10.—Five Negroes are hanging from the limbs of trees near the railroad track and the widow of John T. Orr is dead in her cell. This is the tragic denouement of the assassination of John T. Orr, a wealthy merchant at Clarendon a few nights ago. The wife died from a dose of poison self-administered while the Negroes, her associates in crime, were strung up by a mob of citizens.

The report of the lynching was received here at an early hour Tuesday morning, after telegraphic communication had been suspended for the night, and the only authentic details of the affair came from a railroad telegraph operator at Clarendon who saw the lynching. Four bodies, two women and two men, are hanging from the limb of a tree not far from his office, and a few paces away dangles the body of another Negro woman, the former cook in the Orr household. Miss Morris, the Jewess implicated in the assassination, was not hanged, she having disappeared Monday night.

The lynched are: Manse Castle, Dennis Ricord, Willa Weaver, Susie Jacobs, Will Saunders.

Last Saturday night John T. Orr was assassinated while making a glass of lemonade. He had just returned from choir practice where his wife was organist. The crime was shrouded in mystery until Miss Morris told somebody that she knew who fired the shot. A coroner's inquest resulted in the arrest of five Negroes and Mrs. Orr, and a warrant for Miss Morris. It was charged that the wife had hired the Negroes to do the murder. Orr's life was insured for $5,000 and it developed at the inquest that Orr and his wife lived unhappily. Mr. Orr was formerly a theatrical man. In 1890 the couple eloped to a summer resort in Wisconsin and were married. Later the settled in Clarendon, where Orr prospered in business and was considered wealthy at the time of his death.

SKAGUAY SWEEP BY FIRE.

Fifteen or Twenty Houses Were in Flames as the Steamer Farrallon Cast Off Her Ropes in That Port.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—A special to the Chronicle from Vancouver says:

The steamer Farrallon arrived in Vancouver Tuesday. On Thursday night she left Skaguay and at that time Capt. Rogers says Skaguay was threatened with destruction by fire. Fifteen or twenty houses were in flames as the steamer cast off her ropes, and the last report he received was that an inadequate fire brigade was attempting to keep the flames from the dynamite sheds, where the railway company had their powder stored. This seemed to be impossible, as the fire was rapidly spreading. The people were panic-stricken and the forests surrounding the town were all ablaze.

It was an awe-inspiring sight and looked from the water as if nothing could save the town from destruction.

The house caught fire from the bush fires surrounding Skaguay and as a high wind prevailed it drove the flames to the center of the town. Passengers on board expressed the opinion that Skaguay had been swept out of existence by the fire, but the purser stated that he believed the fire could be gotten under control, as it started near the water front, and the demolishing of several houses between there and the center of town prevent the flames from spreading.

REINFORCEMENTS STOPPED.

Gen. Miles Cables the War Department That the Force at His Command is Ample for All Needs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The secretary of war has stopped the dispatch of further reinforcements to Porto Rico. Gen. Miles reported by cable Tuesday morning that the force at his command was ample for the purpose of completing the conquest of the island. This leaves all of Gen. Wade's provisional corps of 18 regiments still in the United States. It is believed that all of Gen. Wilson's division, except the 3d Kentucky and 5th Illinois, have already sailed, and they will be allowed to proceed. The two regiments above named are at Newport News and will be detained there until the department has arranged for their further detail.

Three Years in the Penitentiary.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 10.—C. E. Roberts, the prominent Memphis lawyer, recently indicted for the forgery of the name of W. H. Bates, St. Louis, on a Memphis hotel register, was Tuesday found guilty and his punishment fixed at three years in the penitentiary. Motion for a new trial was entered.

Banker Haughey Released From Prison.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 10.—Banker Haughey, convicted of wrecking a national bank, was released from prison Tuesday morning.

PEACE PROTOCOL SIGNED.

Secretary Day and M. Cambon, French Ambassador, Attach Their Names to the Document.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The preliminary negotiations looking toward the confirmation of peace advanced a long step Wednesday when the secretary of state and the French ambassador agreed upon the terms upon which future negotiations for a treaty are to be conducted and reduced these to the form of a protocol. This protocol, it is true, is yet to be signed and it is to be submitted to the Spanish government before the formal signatures are affixed, but the administration's view as to the progress made Wednesday was set out in Secretary Day's sentence: "It is expected that this protocol will be executed." There is always the possibility in dealing with the Spanish government that it may recede at the last moment from an implied agreement, but it is scarcely probable that it would be willing to involve the French ambassador in the difficulties that would follow what to the world would seem to be a repudiation of his benevolent efforts in behalf of Spain.

There must be a delay—possibly from 24 to 48 hours—before the next step can be taken and the protocol made binding upon both the United States and Spain by the attachment of the signatures of the plenipotentiaries, Secretary Day for the United States and M. Cambon for Spain. The delay will be largely attributable to physical causes. The protocol is long; it must be translated and turned back and forth into code and simple language no less than five times before it reaches Madrid through the French foreign office.

This work was not begun until late Wednesday afternoon after it had consumed the best energies of Assistant Secretary Ade, of the state department, and M. Thinbeaut, secretary of the French embassy, in the preparation in formal shape of two copies of the protocol, one in English and one in French. These were prepared carefully, the idiomatic variance in the two languages necessitating the greatest caution in order that the identical character of the two copies should be preserved. The length of the protocol imposed a great amount of labor upon the cipher clerks, or whoever is charged with the work of rendering the original into cipher, so that altogether it is apparent that the consumption of time involved in purely technical functions will be considerable as to make the rendition of a very early answer improbable.

As to the character of the protocol it can be stated on authority that the terms are in all practical points those set out in the abstract of the president's conditions published from the white house a week ago. From this fact it is deduced that the extra conditions or qualifications sought to be imposed by the Spanish government were abandoned at least in large part by the French ambassador. This deduction is supported by the circumstance that in the early morning, and before the conference between Secretary Day and M. Cambon, which resulted in the agreement, there was a prevalent impression, based upon the utterances of public men who had talked with the president, that the Spanish answer was unsatisfactory and that the negotiations looked as if they might terminate suddenly. As this situation changed so suddenly after the conference, it may be fairly assumed that the ambassador abandoned the conditions which the president was reputed to have regarded as unsatisfactory. It is believed that the protocol carries within itself provision for the cessation of hostilities. On this point the naval contingent is urgent that our government adopt the Napoleonic policy of refusing to enter into an armistice without requiring some substantial pledge to secure the consummation of peace. What they particularly desire is that our government shall demand as a condition of the cessation of hostilities the surrender to the United States military forces of Morro castle, at the entrance of Havana harbor, and some such points of vantage at the other important ports in the territory soon to fall under our control.

The peace negotiations are now believed to be advanced to a point where the president has felt warranted in turning his attention to the selection of the commissioners to be charged by the United States with the drafting of a treaty of peace.

The Sixth May Be Returned to Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 11.—A telegram from the secretary of war to Executive Director Melish, of the citizens' G. A. R. committee, though giving no definite assurance, conveys encouragement to the members of the committee in their effort to secure the return of the 6th infantry to Cincinnati before the time for the G. A. R. encampment.

The Oldest Volunteer.

A New York State doctor, aged 103, volunteered his services to the President recently, and expressed a desire to enter the army as a surgeon. Even at his advanced years he can read without glasses, and walk 10 to 15 miles a day. The oldest standard medicine is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has no equal for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, fevers and bad blood. It strengthens, purifies and vitalizes. One bottle does much good.

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE.

Each Letter Tells in a Different Way of Agonies Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, my health was gradually being undermined. I suffered untold agony from painful menstruation, backache, pain on top of my head and ovarian trouble. I concluded to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and found that it was all any woman needs who suffers with painful monthly periods. It entirely cured me.

MRS. GEORGIE WASS, 923 Bank St., Cincinnati, O.

For years I had suffered with painful menstruation every month. At the beginning of menstruation it was impossible for me to stand up for more than five minutes, I felt so miserable. One day a little book of Mrs. Pinkham's was thrown into my house and down and read it. I then got some of Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Pills. I can heartily say that to-day new woman; my monthly suffering the past. I shall always praise Compound for what it has done

MRS. MARGARET ANDERSON, 363 Lisbon St., Lewiston, Me.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of painful menstruation and backache. The pain in my back was dreadful, and the agony I suffered during menstruation nearly drove me wild. Now this is all over, thanks to Mrs. Pinkham's medicine and advice.—MRS. CARRIE V. WILLIAMS, South Mills, N. C.

The great volume of testimony proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safe, sure and almost infallible remedy in cases of irregularity, suppressed, excessive or painful monthly periods.

CARING FOR CROWDS.

Cincinnati Seems to Have Solved a Great Problem.

How Visitors to the Coming Grand Army Encampment Will Be Protected—Unique Police and Medical Arrangements.

[Special Cincinnati (O.) Letter.]

THE thirty-second national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic promises to be replete with interesting features. Four hundred of Cincinnati's leading citizens have been engaged since last winter planning and preparing these features.

Not the least interesting is the police preparations. Cincinnati's police force is recognized the country over as having attained an unusually high degree of proficiency. The city's reputation in that respect is not excelled by any other city in the country. For many years Col. Philip Deitsch, an old soldier, has been at the head of the police force of Cincinnati. Years of patient and earnest endeavor on his part, encouraged by the support of a nonpartisan police board have enabled him to reach present results.

As soon as it was known that the 1898 encampment was to come to Cincinnati, Chief Deitsch began planning for a year hence. He recognized the fact that the city's present force, while ample protection in ordinary times, was not sufficient to cope with the large crowds to be found at every encampment. Not in years has an encampment been held at which Cincinnati did not have at least three or four detectives to assist the department in the encampment city. These experienced men Chief Deitsch decided to make the nucleus around which to build a large and adequate force of thief-takers to work in conjunction with the police proper.

The standing force consists of 350 policemen. From these Chief Deitsch selected 50 of the oldest and most reliable men, their record for arrests and brilliant captures of men wanted in the city special places of comfort for men and women.

The care of visitors will not be confined to their protection from fellow creatures. Special pains will be taken to minister to the physical wants, particularly of the veterans. There is now organized a medical staff, consisting of more than 300 reputable Cincinnati physicians, who will devote their time and talent encampment week to treating sick visitors. This staff has been organized by Dr. J. C. Culbertson, editor of the Lancet and Clinic. He is an old soldier and a member of the grand army, and all the ranking members of his staff are physicians who saw active service as surgeons in the war of '61 to '65. These physicians will be uniformed and each will be provided with a special medicine bag containing remedies which are of value in cases of sudden illness.

The bags and medicine were presented to Dr. Culbertson by a prominent Philadelphia drug house, as a compliment to him. To make the work of these 300 physicians practical and effective the city will be divided and each physician will be assigned to a certain district. One physician will also be assigned to each school building where veterans are quartered, and will make a daily visit to see if his services are needed. These men will look after the general health of the old soldiers. Another division of the medical corps will be assigned to points at which large crowds are likely to gather, the desire being to have medical or surgical aid always instantly available. Accordingly some physicians will be assigned to Coney Island, the Lagoon, Chester park and other of the pleasure resorts. On the boats plying to and from Coney Island still other physicians will be stationed. On Thursday night, when the fireworks display will be given at three different parts of the city simultaneously, a number of physicians will be scattered through the crowd. Their uniforms will be of such a nature as to plainly indicate their calling.

The efforts of the citizens of Cincinnati along this line will not, however, be confined to necessities. Beside the protection afforded by the police and the physicians, a committee on public comfort will go even fur-

ENCOUNTERED MANY PERILS.

Fire Raged in One of the Transport Ships of the Third Philippine Expedition for Several Days.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—A dispatch to the World from Manila Bay, August 4, via Hong Kong, says:

The third Philippine expedition is here, 23 days out from Honolulu. Never did an expedition encounter more dangers or endure more perils. On the voyage six men and one officer died and 50 more were taken sick. Typhoid and meningitis played havoc on the transports. Two firemen went insane and leaped overboard. But fire was the worst peril of all.

The fleet of transports and their convoy, the monitor Monterey, were three days out from Hawaii when fire was discovered aboard the transport Morgan City. One of the crew reported to Capt. Dillon that there was a blaze in the coal bunkers.

"Get out the hose," whispered the captain to the first mate.

At midnight, when all the troops were asleep, Capt. Dillon assembled the crew and told them the news. Every man was pledged to secrecy. To let the soldiers know that they were over a raging fire, would be to precipitate a panic.

Silently the men coupled on the hose and the steam pipes. Then they began battling the flames in the hold. Next morning the fire was as fierce as ever. Night and day the heroic crew fought the fire, but with little success. And still the troops did not know that a fire was burning beneath their feet.

The Morgan City fell off in speed and the whole fleet was delayed. Capt. Dillon did not signal the flagship. He kept his men at work fighting the flames in the bunkers, while the troops went about on deck all unconscious of their peril.

The bunkers were still burning when the Morgan City arrived here. Then for the first time the troops learned of their danger. The flames were extinguished after the ship had been in port a few hours.

On board the Morgan City were 600 men of the Idaho volunteers and a detachment of Nebraska volunteers.

The next most interesting incident of the voyage was the sight of the active volcano Parícuton de Pajaros. The ships passed it on the night of July 23 when it was in full operation. A column of flame mounted far into the air and illumined the sea. The men crowded the rails and enjoyed the spectacle until it sank beneath the horizon, leaving only a pillar of flame mirrored in the clouds.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Sampson to Be Advanced Eight Numbers, Schley Six, Capt. Clark Six and Lieut. Wainwright Eight Numbers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The president has determined to recommend to congress that Acting Rear Admiral Sampson be advanced eight numbers and Commodore Schley six numbers. This will result in making each a rear admiral, but with Commodore Schley ranking immediately below Adm. Sampson. Capt. Clark, of the Oregon, will be recommended for an advance of six numbers in the captain's grade and Lieut. Commander Wainwright will go up eight numbers. Other promotions throughout the fleet will be remembered.

RECAPTURED HIS PRISONER.

Members of the Tenth Cavalry Overpower the Sheriff and Rescue a Colored Man Under Arrest.

BARTOW, Fla., Aug. 11.—Sheriff Tillis went to Lakeland Monday for a Negro charged with selling liquor. He arrested his man, handcuffed him and had him on the car. While waiting for the train to pull out 25 or 30 of the 10th cavalry (a Negro regiment) walked into the car and demanded that the sheriff release his prisoner. This Sheriff Tillis refused to do and in a moment he was looking down twenty-five or thirty revolver barrels. The soldiers then took the prisoner from the sheriff and walked off with him.

The Crisis Near at Hand.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Ambassador Cambon, it is learned from an official source, has been instructed to tell the Madrid government that the terms of the protocol as agreed upon must be accepted or rejected at once. It is in the nature of an ultimatum and unless Cambon is instructed to agree, all negotiations are off.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—A government hospital train, consisting of 13 tourist cars, one private Pullman car, one dining and combination car, which left Atlanta at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday night with 185 sick and wounded soldiers, arrived in this city Wednesday night at 8:05 o'clock over the Southern road.

RIVER DISASTER IN ALASKA.

The Steamer Jesse V. Foundered in the Kuskotawin River, in a Terrible Storm—Several Lives Lost.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 11.—Further details state there were 18 persons on the river steamer Jesse V., of the Columbian Exploration Co., which foundered in the Kuskotawin river, Alaska, during a severe storm July 28. It is thought all were lost. The steamer at the time of the disaster had in tow the barge Minerva loaded with supplies.

The news of the disaster was brought to the headquarters of the Alaska Commercial Co. by Indians, who had found the loaded barge belonging to the party partly wrecked. The Indians assert that the steamer foundered and that all of her party perished in the storm that swept down on them before they were well into the river, and only a few hours after they had left the steamer Lakme on which they had gone north. The Indians confiscated the supplies.

The party consisted of the following persons: E. S. Limes, Seattle, Wash.; A. C. Staston, Seattle, Wash.; V. J. Murphy, Bowling Green, Ky.; Rob. P. Frierson, Gallatin, Tenn.; C. H. Mitchell, Gallatin, Tenn.; H. C. Clifford Hare, Gallatin, Tenn.; Engineer Kenstock, Milwaukee, Wis.; Smallhouse, Louisville, Ky.; Eli Knudson, Genesee, Idaho; Harry C. Hadreen, Seattle, Wash.; O. E. Aroid, Seattle, Wash.; Doc Allen, Kentucky; Rev. R. Weber, Moravian missionary, wife and child; two Indian guides.

The expedition was composed of a number of well to do young men of Kentucky and Tennessee families, who joined the others in Seattle. They were furnished with the steamer Jesse and the barge Minerva by Richard Chilcott, of this city. There were no marine men in the party.

Capt. Murphy, of Bowling Green, Ky., got his license after coming here and it is said he commanded a steamer before.

The engineer was from Milwaukee, and had formerly worked on a railroad locomotive.

The party left Seattle May 31 on the steam schooner Lakme. The Jesse was a strongly built stern wheel boat, 50 feet long and 14½ beam. She had powerful engines. She had a low deck house, with a small pilot house on top. The barge was an open affair, to be used to carry supplies. Both the Jesse and the Minerva were securely lashed to the deck of the barge Admiral, which was towed by the Lakme. At Good News bay the boats were put into the water and on June 27 were ready to start up the river. They left at 10 o'clock and by 9 o'clock were out of sight of the Lakme which proceeded to St. Michaels. The rest of the story comes from the Indians.

The mouth of the Kuskotawin, like that of many other Alaskan rivers, is very wide, and with the wind from a proper direction gets exceedingly rough. A storm came up before the Jesse and tow reached a safe anchorage. A few days later the Indians found the barge partly wrecked on the north shore of the river. A few days later they found a hastily constructed raft. Nothing was seen or heard of steamer or passengers. All are believed to have been lost.

Capt. Chilcott, who outfitted the party and built the boat, has not yet given up hope. He believes the passengers will yet turn up, as the Jesse was built especially strong to go against the river currents.

Movement of the 1st Army Corps.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Adj. Gen. Corbin has issued the following statement: The secretary of war has ordered one division of the 1st army corps from Chattanooga to Knoxville, Tenn., and another division of the same corps from Chickamauga to Lexington, Ky. A division of the 4th corps, now at Tampa, has been ordered to Huntsville, Ala. The 2d division (Gen. Davis) of the 2d army corps, now at Manassas, Va., has been ordered to Middletown, Pa. The advisability of marching the troops from Chickamauga to Knoxville and Lexington is under consideration.

London Press Comment.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The afternoon newspapers comment upon the battle of Malate as being a repetition of the now familiar story: "The Spaniards, brave and incompetent, firing wildly and attacking too late, and the Americans brave, cool and skillful, notwithstanding their operations were conducted in the midst of a tropical monsoon." The papers also refer to the "ominous neutrality of the Philippines" as being evidence of trouble in store for the Americans.

Ben Jordan, the prize fighter who recently whipped George Dixon, America's champion featherweight, is the son of a London clergyman, and has been disowned by his family because of his taking up pugilism.

It is said that Col. John Hay, American ambassador to England, during the two days following Schley's victory shook hands with over 4,000 people who came to congratulate him on his country's triumph.

John M. Todd, who recently celebrated his seventieth birthday in Portland, Me., has been in his time sailor, blacksmith, anti-slavery agitator, temperance advocate, greenback champion and populist speaker, and has done well in every one of those callings.

Mr. Gladstone was one of the very few men who, not being Frenchmen, occupied the position of member of the Institute of France. Only four persons are now living, it is said, who can claim the same distinction, one of them being the leader of the Spanish republican party, Senor Emilio Castelar.

JOHN'S FATE.

The Dear Old Lady Was Entirely Reconciled to the Situation When the End Came.

They sat a little way apart on the deck of the Cleveland boat the other morning. One was a young woman, possibly 25, with bright brown eyes and soft hair and a pretty face, and the other was old—she must have been 65 at least—with tired eyes and gray hair and a wrinkled face. The first would sit still a moment, then wriggle around in her chair and look over along the dock as though she feared something. The old lady was sweetly calm, and observed the actions of the other with a curious little smile. Finally she decided to speak to her deck mate, if one may use that term.

"Be 'yew lookin' fer somebody?" asked the old lady quietly.

The other woman sighed as though it were a relief to her to be spoken to, and pushed her chair a little nearer her questioner.

"No," she said; "I am not looking for anyone."

"I thought yew mote be," went on the old lady. "I seen yew a-gazin' off toward the dock."

"No," repeated the younger woman. "I am not looking for anyone. I'm just a little bit frightened, that is all."

"Skeert, be yew; why, fo' th' lan's sake, what of?"

"Well," continued the fidgety one, "since the sinking of that ocean steamer I have been dreadfully frightened of the water."

"Sho, yew don't say. Well, yew needn't be. They ain't nobody drownin' but them whose fate it is to drown."

"Oh, do you think so?"

"Of course I does. I made up my mind to that 20 year ago."

"What makes you say that?" asked the young woman with a little look of interest in her eyes.

"Well, my husband wuz a sailor on these lakes fer 20 year. After awhile he was 'pinted captin' an' he'n me uster go all over everywhere. He'n me seen a lot a storms in our day. But they wuz never no disaster. I sez to him onet, sez I, 'John, yew're a sailer an' I know it's yew'r fate to die by drownin'.' He looked at me a minit an' then he sez, sez he, 'Marthy, I'll fool yew.' I didn't say nothin' more, but I knowed that his fate would be a wet one. I jes' felt it like. Yew know how yew'll feel things sometimes. Well, it wuz thataway with me. I knowed John would be drowned some day. 'Twouldn't be no more'n nacheral."

"Well, we sailed and sailed, me'n John, an' he captin'. Arter he'd been at it fer more'n 20 year he wuz retired an' we made up our minds t' take a little farm away out the Gratiot road an' spen' our remainin' days in peace an' quiet. By that time I'd almoe' made up my min' that John wuz goin' t' fool me and not die drowned arter all. Then one mornin' in the airly summer when I wuz a-puttin' up a little fruit, th' en' come. John went out t' the pump t' draw me a pail o' fresh water, an' he didn't come back. Bimeby I went out thar, an' lo an' behold! John had a 'leptic fit and fell inter the pump tub head fust. He was drowned w'en I reached him. 'Th' Lord's will be done,' said I. I knowed it wuz his fate. An' I've said ever since that they ain't nobody drowned 'es' it be his fate to be drowned, but, do yew know, when I seen John a-layin' face down in that tub o' water I just felt sorry fer him an' couldn't help a-thinkin' heow 'shamed he'd be ef he'd a knowed he wuz drowned in a tub o' water arter sailin' these lakes fer 20 years 'thout no disaster ever happenin' to him."

And the kindly old lady had wiped away a tear that the wind, probably, had caused to gather.—Detroit Free Press.

GRAND ARMY ENCAMPMENT AT CINCINNATI.
(Grand Triumphant Arch to Be Erected on Government Square.)

other cities being taken into consideration. For the past six months these 50 men have been in constant training for detectives. Cincinnati has an unusually complete rogues' gallery, where pictures of every noted criminal in the country and many from abroad are to be found. Cincinnati was also one of the first American cities to adopt the Bertillon system of identifying criminals, Chief Deitsch being to-day at the head of the national Bertillon system. With these two ample records of rogues' make-ups to study, the 50 picked men are to-day experienced detectives at least in that part of the art of picking out criminals, which is so essential at a large gathering. These 50 men added to the already large present force were placed under the direct charge of Chief of Detectives Larry Hazen. The force is now well organized, and at least a week before the encampment they will be stationed at all the depots, hotels and on frequented thoroughfares to intercept such members of the light-fingered gentry as may venture to Cincinnati to ply their nefarious trade. With such a well-organized force of detectives to come in contact with, it is safe to say that few of those who do yield to the temptation to visit Cincinnati the first week in September will remain in the city long after learning the exhaustive preparations made for their capture.

The force of patrolmen will also be greatly augmented and will include all private watchmen of the city. These men are also receiving special weekly instructions to put them in readiness for the encampment work. It is safe to say that at least 1,000 patrolmen and detectives will be on duty to guard the hundreds of thousands of visitors expected from all parts of the country.

In addition to this general police protection arrangements have been made to extend special protection to the veterans who will occupy free quarters in the school buildings of the city. Two special officers will be assigned to each building, each standing watch 12 hours. They will be under the supervision of an officer of the day for each building. The usual plan of protecting the public on the day of the big parade by stretching wires on both sides of the streets over which the veterans will march will be followed in this city. To accomplish all this requires no little expenditure of money and $40,000 has been set aside by the city authorities for arranging for these special protective features.

From this $10,000 also will be provided an elaborate system of sanitary regulations for public comfort. The board of city affairs, having in mind the health of citizens and visitors alike, will establish in all sections of ther and provide some of the luxuries of life. Doing an encampment is at best tiresome work. In other cities it has been no uncommon sight to see well-dressed people sitting on the curb stones to rest their weary limbs. In this city a committee of which W. C. Johnson, a grand army veteran, is chairman, will provide places of rest for men and women, separately, on nearly every square in the heart of the city. All vacant storerooms will be converted into comfortable quarters with a profusion of chairs and cots and a liberal supply of ice water. These places will be plainly marked so that anyone who becomes tired on the sidewalk can look forward or backward and find one within his view. In these retreats the old soldiers can sit down and read or write, or can take a nap on one of the cots. The places of rest for the ladies will be in the churches in the downtown districts. They will be fitted up with all the equipments that tend to bring comfort to a weary woman.

The one ambition of the people of Cincinnati is to send the old soldier and his friends home as well as they came, and satisfied with their entertainment.

The Annexation of Texas.

The annexation of Texas brought on the Mexican war. That brought a large addition to our territory. It was necessary to settle the question of slavery in the annexed territory, and this opened the slavery question anew. Both of the old parties were after awhile split asunder by the debate, and the question of slavery or no slavery in the territories became the leading issue in our politics. In 16 years from the annexation of Texas, this chain of causes had plunged the country into the most tremendous civil war in the history of the world. In just 20 years the war had ended in the entire abolition of slavery in the United States. Thus, the annexation of Texas brought about unforeseen results and changed the history of the continent.

A Shattered Nervous System.

FINALLY HEART TROUBLE.

Restored to Health by Dr. Miles' Nerve.

M. R. EDWARD HARDY, the jolly manager of Sheppard Co's. great store at Braceville, Ill., writes: "I had never been sick a day in my life until 1890. I got so bad with nervous prostration that I had to give up and commence to doctor. I tried our local physicians and one in Joliet, but none gave me any relief and I thought I was going to die. I became despondent and suffered untold agony. I could not eat, sleep nor rest, and it seemed as if I could not exist. At the end of six months I was reduced to but a shadow of myself, and at last my heart became affected and I was truly miserable. I took six or eight bottles of Dr. Miles' Nerve. It gave me relief from the start, and at last a cure, the greatest blessing of my life." Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address, DR. TYPEWRITERS.

Opinions of Them Dictated to One of Them by an Accomplished Stenographer.

More trash and nonsense are written about typewriter girls by people who do not understand what good typewriting is or how to dictate to a typewriter than about any other profession or any other business in which either men or women are engaged today. The fact of the matter is that typewriting is worth anywhere from $5 a week up to $20 or $25, which is sometimes paid as a weekly salary to expert typewriters who have no knowledge of shorthand.

It is no unusual thing for typewriters to earn at folio work from dictation by stenographers $2 an hour and over, and the finest experts are worth every cent of that amount of money. Among stenographers $1 an hour is the ruling rate, and for that $1 a good typewriter with an expert dictator will transcribe from 30 to 40 folios an hour of testimony. In some cases even 40 folios an hour of solid matter have been dictated. Forty folios is two columns of The Sun, and of the men who write about dictating to typewriters as though they knew about it there are probably not half a dozen in the country who can dictate so much.

Many years ago the writer was employed as shorthand amanuensis by George Alfred Townsend, well known as "Gath," who habitually dictated to him in shorthand two columns an hour and did it every day in the week two hours a day for months at a time, indicating every full stop, semicolon, quotation mark and paragraph. If "Gath" dictates to a typewriter now and has one of the best in the business, no doubt he can dictate from a column and a half to two columns an hour of original matter, and the writer knows of no other man who can do that. Of course there are plenty of incompetents who pose as typewriters and who bring the business into discredit by their poor work. For many years the writer has been thrown in contact with expert typewriters in his business as an official stenographer. In view of the many gibes and sneers in which newspaper writers indulge on the subject of typewriter operators of the feminine gender, it is matter of simple justice to say that the women with whom he has been associated in his business have been without exception well educated, refined, capable of doing rapid and accurate work, who attended strictly to business and did not waste time with frivolous remarks.

It seems unfair to judge of any business or profession by the weaklings engaged therein, whether the work be law, medicine, the ministry, shorthand or typewriting, and any one who cannot accomplish twice as much dictating to a good typewriter operator as with a pen is unable to do that either because he does not know how to dictate or because he has an inferior operator. It took just eight minutes to dictate this article to a typewriter who does not claim to special expertness and whose charge was 25 cents.

(The above was not altered in any respect by the editor, and the printers were requested to follow copy. The reader may therefore judge of the accuracy both of the dictator and the typewriter.)—New York Sun.

Why Beer Kegs Are Made So Thick.

It takes a long while for a beer keg to wear out. It has a tough constitution and is protected from internal decay by a coat of pure and hard pitch. The pitch used on the modern keg is much superior to that formerly used. It is clear, tasteless and tough. An empty beer keg will stand a great many hard knocks before the pitch scales off.

The kegs wear out, when they do wear, externally. They are wet and dry alternately, and this promotes decay. Then they get a great deal of unnecessary banging around between the time they leave the brewery and are brought back again. Everybody, from the driver and railroad and steamboat hands down to the barkeepers, seems to think the kegs are indestructible. A whole car load of empty kegs is frequently thrown from the car down to the ground. A single empty keg is often thrown 15 feet. It really isn't necessary to make the kegs as heavy, so far as the keeping of the beer is concerned. They began by being made heavy in the old days. The brewers then deemed it absolutely requisite to make them that way to withstand the pressure of the beer. The very fact that they were made heavy and clumsy subjected them to rough handling. Now they have to be made heavy and extra material has to be put into the heads and staves simply because of this handling and not from any danger on account of the internal pressure of the beer.—Chicago Tribune.

Easy to Make a Strong Cigar.

A tobacco manufacturer who moves in a select coterie of tobacco loving friends was recently told by one of those connoisseurs that he had yet to find a cigar that was too strong for him to enjoy. Acting on the suggestion, the manufacturer took occasion to have a cigar specially constructed of stems and nearly covered with a rich, appetizing Havana leaf, rolled into points at both ends. This he presented to his friend with the wish that it might prove strong enough to suit his taste. Suspecting nothing, the friend proceeded to smoke, and was soon surprised to see coals like redhot nails exuding from the end of the cigar. As the skin peeled off his tongue his brain began to reel, and he soon gave up in an old fashioned attack of nausea. He no longer boasts of his capacity before people who are in the business.—Philadelphia Record.

Oh, the Pain of Wheat Wanted Rheumatism!

Rheumatism often causes the most intense suffering. Many have for years vainly sought relief from this disabling disease, and are to-day worse off than ever. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and Swift's Specific is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated diseases.

A few years ago I was taken with inflammatory Rheumatism, which became so intense that I was for weeks unable to walk. I tried several prominent physicians and took their treatment faithfully, but was unable to get the slightest relief. In fact, my condition seemed to grow worse, the disease spread over my entire body, and from November to March I suffered agony. I tried many patent medicines, but none relieved me. Upon the advice of a friend I decided to try S. S. Swift's Specific. Before allowing me to take it, however, my guardian, who was a chemist, analyzed the remedy, and pronounced it free of potash or mercury. I felt so much better after taking two bottles, that I continued the remedy, and in two months I was cured completely. The cure was permanent, for I have never since had a touch of Rheumatism, though many times exposed to damp and cold weather.

Don't suffer longer with Rheumatism. Throw aside your oils and liniments, as they can not reach your trouble. Don't experiment with doctors—their potash and mercury will add to your disability and completely destroy your digestion.

S.S.S. For The Blood
Will cure perfectly and permanently. It is guaranteed purely vegetable, and contains no potash, mercury, or other mineral. Books mailed free by Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Burglars In Paris.

PARIS seems to be infested with burglars just now, and some of the robberies have been exceedingly bold.

Wednesday night about half-past eight o'clock a burglar entered the residence of J. H. Haggard, on Cypress street, and stole a ring and a valuable gold watch belonging to Mrs. Haggard, and forty-six cents in money. The thief entered the house through an open window on the ground floor. Mr. and Mrs. Haggard were sitting on the front porch while the burglar was in the house.

Monday night burglars entered the home of George R. Bell, on Duncan avenue, and stole a $150 diamond ring and several other articles. L. C. Henderson and Will Turner, colored men from Millersburg, are in jail, charged with the crime. Each man lays the burglary on the other. The robbery was committed about nine o'clock.

On the same night a thief entered
Mrs. Mattie Oldson's home near Duncan avenue, and stole a pocket-book which contained four dollars.

The residence of J. K. Spears, on Seventh street, has also been visited by burglars who stole a lot of silverware.

One exceedingly bold burglar entered the room of Officer Geo. Hill the other night but left before he secured anything.

RESOURCES OF PHILIPPINES.

There is Vast Wealth in the Islands Awaiting Cultivation.

The most important agricultural product is what is known to commerce as Manila hemp. Thousands of tons of this fiber is raised annually on the Pacific slopes of the southern islands, where it also grows wild. That this is the leading product of the Philippines is due to the fact that its cultivation requires the least effort. With only careless attention it is possible to raise many tons to the acre. The fiber is obtained from a species of plantain called abaca, a tree which grows to the height of from 15 to 20 feet and is from 8 to 12 inches in diameter. The trunk may be as easily separated as a stalk of celery. An ordinary knife only is required to cut down the tree, and a rude instrument is used to press out the juice and shred the fiber. After a little drying in the sun, and packing it into bales of 240 pounds each, it is ready for shipment. The United States and England take almost the entire crop. Hemp of this kind is grown nowhere else in the world. It is said that a fortune awaits one who can invent a machine which will accelerate the process of pressing out the juice and pulp, leaving only the fiber. A rude knife and a lever for holding it strongly in position are the instruments now in use.

Next in the order of importance as a product of the soil is sugar. The poorest sugar in the world is produced in the Philippines, and yet the islands are capable of producing the best. The reason for the poor quality lies in the method of manufacturing, and not in any disadvantage of soil, climate or character of the cane, which is superior in saccharine. The methods of sugar manufacture which prevailed in the fifteenth century are still in vogue in the Philippines.

The third product of the Philippines in the order of importance is tobacco. While the United States furnishes a market for the hemp and sugar of Manila, scarcely any of its tobacco or cigars are brought to this country, except now and then upon sailing vessels engaged in eastern trade. But the crop is an important one, and tobacco and cigars have long held the same reputation in the east that the Havana product holds in the west. Lately the industry has shown a tendency to expand, owing to the fact that the Spanish government, realizing, in one instance at least, the effects of an evil policy, has abandoned its monopoly of the trade.

There are few other products of agriculture to be mentioned. Fruit is not cultivated, but grows wild in abundance and variety characteristic of a tropical country. Bananas of delicious flavor, oranges of poor quality, mangoes, guavas, and many other native fruits grow wild. There are no olives or figs, and there is no vine culture. Dairy farming has not yet been established in the islands, although there is said to be great opportunity in that direction. Butter is imported from London in bottles, and naturally, is held at a very high price. Throughout all the islands of the archipelago agriculture is yet in an undeveloped state. Vast opportunities may be found for exploiting modern methods of farming. There is not a farm in any of the islands which will compare favorably with even the worst on the American continent. Plowing is done with a sharpened stick, and nothing is known of agricultural labor-saving implements such as are used in the United States and other civilized countries. Only the most primitive methods are employed.

The mineral resources of the islands have never been developed, although they are known to be considerable. There is coal in abundance in Cebu and Negros. Gold is found in the alluvial deposits along the streams, and at the mouths of rivers, particularly in Luzon and Mindanao. Copper exists in the central districts of Luzon, and lead is plentiful in Cebu. Immense deposits of sulphur are found in the craters of extinct volcanoes, and in some of the islands there is found a good quality of iron ore.—Hon. Frank A. Vanderlip, in Century.

When You Meet in Japan.
Nothing is more amusing than to watch two acquaintances saluting in the streets of a Japanese town. As they come in sight of each other, they slacken their pace, and approach with downcast eyes and averted face, as if neither was worthy of beholding the other; then they bow low, so as to bring the face on a level with the knees, on which the palms of the hands are pressed. A succession of hissing sounds is next made by drawing in the breath between the closed teeth, interspersed with a series of complimentary phrases uttered with great volubility in a sort of undertone, each trying to outdo his friend in rapidity and extravagance of language, while the palms are diligently rubbed. At last the climax is reached, and each endeavors to give the precedence to the other. For some moments, perhaps for a full minute, the polite contest continues, then the ceremony abruptly ends, as if the difficulty were capable of none but a brusque solution, and the two pass on hurriedly, with a look of extreme relief.—Brooklyn Citizen.

To Communicate with Mars.
An eminent astronomer says that for communication with the inhabitants of Mars we should require a flag as large as Ireland and a pole 500 miles long.—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE FATAL GIFT.

"Sing," says Eusebius, and the minstrel sings.
The soldiers hardly lift their gloomy eyes.
But soon the magic voice and wizard strings
Rearm defeat with zeal for new empire.

"Amazing!" cried the king. "In vain I thought
To spur them to the ardor you inspire.
Accept this jewel, with a kingdom bought
And yet scarce meet for one of Heaven's choir."

"Sing, mighty minstrel; thine enraptured voice
Should rouse the sons of sorrow far and near;
Let tribulation, 'neath thy spell, rejoice,
And let despair make way for hope and cheer."

Again the singer swept the enchanted strings:
A song arose the strain surpassing sweet;
But disappointment fell on court and king:
The mystic charm was somehow incomplete.

For ever and anon the restless eye
Would fasten on that jewel, fair as dawn;
And then—as if the blue should fall the sky—
A subtle something from the song was gone.

Days passed away; the gifted bard became
A songless dreamer o'er a priceless stone;
Majestic genius stumbled, halt and lame;
Entrancing power renounced her regal throne.

"Mine, mine, the fault!" exclaimed the troubled king.
He turned and gave directions to his men:
"Take from the bard that rare and costly thing!"
Then, then the singer sang with power again.

"Are ye listenin'?" Mike inquired, seeing that Darcie was eying his papers in a meditative way. "Beca'se av ye are not, I'll not waste me breath."
"Go on," said Darcie. "I was only comparing what I have said myself with what you are saying. It's odd we should look at it in the same way. You're a hot-headed Irishman, like all the rest of them, Mike. Why aren't you swearing vows against the oppressors?"

"Beca'se I'm wan av thim meself. It's not a hobo I am, packin' me blankets from camp to camp. I've a shate av me own in the country; and if this foolishness goes on, I'm clane ruined. There's no man can run a mine in the Cor de Lane—no, nor sell it, av he was to give it away—the gait things is goin' now."

"Ah, it's not a question av the mine at all! They wants to run things here the same as they does in Montany. Ye wouldn't believe the power av the union in Butte. Things was gettin' mighty quare last spring before the mine-owners tuk the defensive. Faith, there was little law in the Cor de Lanes that could howld above the law av the union!"

"Whin Hogan, the shif'boss, was murdered in the Caltrap mine—stabbed in the breast wid the prong av a miner's canle-shtick, an' him comin' out o' the tunnel to the dhrivin' house in broad day—there was plenty that saw it; but him that done it was a union man, an' divil a witness c'd be found to say he seen it. They wouldn't dast, for the union can protect its own, be they lambs or wolves. The hand av it was that heavy on the owners, a man couldn't be seen shpak-in' fri'ndly on the street with wan av them but the union tuk note av him for a traitor. There was not a thing the mines c'd do but combine, or quit business, or be dictated to by the union bosses, like childer! Last autumn, whin the mines shut down by common consent, it was partly to get better rates for transportation; but that wouldn't go down with the union boys. They had it the owners had turned the tables on them, and gone on a shtrike themselves; and that wouldn't do, ye know; for the first principle av the unions is that nobody shall combine but themselves."

"Well, the shuttin' down didn't work in all ways as they hoped. Fightin' it out is bad; whichever side makes the kick, the wrong ones is sure to get hurt. The best men wint off seekin' work where they could find it; the wans that sthayed an' growled, they was the worst av the lot, and all winter they was cussin' an' blowin' an' gettin' up shream for a big fight. Take a town full av idle men, an' free whisky flowin' by the gallon, and a set av bull-headed chumps that never did an honest day's work in their lives talkin' about the wrongs av the lab'rin' man—ye know what'll be the end of that."

"The mines gev out in the spring they was ready to reshume, and published their scale av wages: three for unskilled and three and a half for skilled miners, the same as it was at first. And then the union put forth its last word: every man workin' under-ground sh'd get three fifty and no man sh'd take less and work wid his life in the Cor de Lane. 'Twas then the owners shied their hat into the ring, and both sides shtripped for fight."

"'Twas aisy bringin' in men that was willin' to work for three dollars, and glad to get it, but it wasn't aisy kapin' them here. They couldn't bide the life they led, with the union puttin' its shpite on them. Some was seduced into 'finin', but more was scared out av the country entirely. They leaked away faster than they was fetched in; and thim that stayed was that harassed an' worried they couldn't do their work like min."

"At last there was two boys workin' in the 'Tale o' Woe' that had the sand to say they would nayther jine nor quit. They stud out an' tuk their punishment. Wan av them was an Amerikin, and he was cliver wid his talk about his rights to work where he plased, and for who he plased, under the laws av the country, widout l'ave av the brotherhoods. But they quinned him and his prattle about his rights. Him and the other lad that was workin' wid him, they haled up the mountain by a long thrail."

"Where are ye takin' us?" says they. "We'll go out p'aceful, the way we come in, by the railroad."

"Ye might get hurted that way," says big Dan Rafferty, pokin' his ugly fun at thim. "Wallace and Gem is full av excited min; it might not be safe for ye. We'll take ye by a quiet road where ye'll meet wid no wan."

"And they prodded the boys up the mountain, abusin' thim all the way; two hundred men drivin' two—'batin' on ile-cans wid shticks, and cussin' them wid every foul name they could turn their tongue to. They shoved them out over the Montany divide, and the clothes half tore off them wid the handlin' they got. 'Twas the month av April, an' the snows was cruel deep. They put them out on a forsaken road to wally through the drifts forty-five miles to Thompson's falls, and they strangers to the way. There's nare a house but wan, an' that wan closed aginst them for fear of the union."

"And that's how wan lab'rin' man taches another who are his bosses in this free country. By the Lord above! if I come to have bosses over me, I'll not choose them wid the heart av an awl and the head av a han'shpike! Do they think they're doin' the lab'rin' man any good by such blaggard work as this? Faith, I think we're like to have a labor inquisition here, if things goes on. 'Tis too much power to put in the hands av men as ignorant as they is sassy."

"Did the scabs get through?" asked Darcie.

"Wan av thim got through an' teshtified in court to what I'm tellin' ye, and wid him and other witnesses and affidavits by scores the owners got an injunction laid on the miners' unions, all an' several, for to quit intimidatin' an' conspիրin' in the Cor de Lane. But 'twas no use at all, except to make thim mad; ye moight as well shake an old broom at a grizzly bear. Ye know the rest yourself. But that's how guarded trainroads av shcabs come into the Cor de Lanes; and that's how it is the mines is armed an' barricaded—all but the Big Horn, sole and lone, which never come into the owners' association at all, and gives the union all it asks."

"What reason did Bingham offer, do you know, for not coming into the association?" asked Darcie.

"He gev the reason that the Big Horn is a wet mine, which it is; but nayther the water nor the mine in the mine ever kep' the Big Horn boys underground whin the union wanted thim on top. They trots back and forth the same as they owned the mine. Some says the old man's that tied up wid his own foolishness he can't help the way things is goin'. Pether Danning, the foreman that's in since Misher Bingham come, has the pull on him entirely. He's a mighty man in the union, is Pete; an' he's well acquainted wid the saycets av the management. 'Tis he knows all about the commissions the old man has pocketed along av ivery order for supplies that he gets in; and a costly mine it is to run—for the comp'ny—ye may lay your life on that. Times when I was workin' in it, I'd hear outside that the mine was doin' poorly—not a hatful av ore in sight; whin I'd know meself there was bodies av ore bein' covered up by order av the manager, for reasons that he kep' to himself. Pether Danning is in all that, ye see; so the old man has got to be fri'nds wid Pether's fri'nds."

"Come, Mike, don't be scandalous," said Darcie, rising to his feet. "He's a soaker, if you like; a coward, I suspect, an incapable if ever there was one, but not a common thief and swindler!"

"Ah, ye know it well enough! 'Tis as public as the winds. The comp'ny's far away from the rumor av it, or 'twould have been known before now. The old man's name is rife wid shcandals; and how he comes by such a darlin' for his daughter is a thing I can't cipher out meself, niver havin' seen the lady he buried—Mrs. Bingham that was."

"We are not discussing the ladies of the management," Darcie demurred.

"Dod, I'm not like a fasset, thir, to be turned on and off wid a twist av the screw," Mike rejoined. "Ye can take me as I come, or l'ave me alone."

"I'll l'ave you alone," smiled Darcie, and then was silent for a long while; but he was too restless, apparently, to return to his writing.

Mike had a suspicion that his partner did not sleep much that night—not that he lay awake himself to see; but somebody had been up, burning firewood in unreasonable quantities. Darcie, who never complained of his food, left his breakfast untasted, and Mike ruf'ly scraped into the fire the whole of a fine boiled potato soaked in ham gravy.

"It's the heart av him shakin' his insides so that he cannot at. I have been that way meself. Ah, me little Darcie, ye'd better have wint for the docter, or shstayd wid the old man and put me to the proof, that has a girl av me own. I think I see ye this minute, Kitty darlin'; God's blessin' on ye, wheriver ye are!"

IV.

A BROKEN REED.

The threatened notice for Darcie to pack his blankets was not, in his case, delivered in person. If appeared without visible human agency on the outside of the door of the Black Dwarf, and the language was such that it cannot be repeated here.

Darcie and Mike worked close together, and were never unarmed or off their guard. When Mike, two or three days after the storm, was obliged to go to Wallace for supplies, he avoided the railroad track and took the old trail, and Darcie remained in the tunnel, with his Winchester handy, and an ore-car on the track by way of barricade. He was in his working-clothes, but he was not making wages, not even the wages of a trummer, according to company prices. He was still grinding away at that equivocal position from which, as he had volunteered to Miss Bingham, the next eastern mail was to release him. He was already free in intention, and his conscience toward her was clear, but evidence of his previous position was still upon his person in the contents of a certain letter which he had written on the very day before the day that brought her to the cabin. To send it, or not to send it, that was the question. To whom did that letter belong?

"I'm a broken reed," he said aloud, and then he could not help laughing, for he was in a curious case. His meditation went on in the silence somewhat to the following effect:

"I can't do their work, and I won't take their money. They must send out another man; better not send a young one. By Jove, it's rough on the old company! I'm the fourth one, and I've 'succumbed,' as Mike says, like my predecessors. No, hang it—not like my predecessors. I thank the Lord I'm boodle-proof, and drink-proof, and proof, at a pinch, against the seductions of the elk and the big-horn in their native wilds. When Singleton came out, the foxy old manager took him hunting. Happy thought: hunt first, investigate afterward. Big time they had. They got so chummy over their camp fire that Singleton felt like a brother to the whole outfit; by the time he'd shot a brace of big-horn and lost his money regularly at poker with the boys, there wasn't a spot on the sun of his regard. It was a simple matter to investigate after that. Took Bingham's word for everything."

"Poor Langley went down with a run: what with the attitude, and the fancy potatoes they seduced him with, he drank himself silly, and was shipped home like a sheep."

"Grant, they claim, never got any nearer the Big Horn than New York. That was a slander, I dare say. I didn't stop in New York; I never tempted the gods, and denied my weakness; I never professed to be girl-proof. I came straight on; thought I'd be safe when I'd got into the mountains."

"Comes a knock at the door one pitch-black night, and in she steps in her wet skirt like a lily in its sheath—a rose and lily in one. And I am gone, all at once, like a snow-slide in March; a chinook is nothing to it: there's not enough left of me to wipe up the floor with."

"Is this Mike McGowan?" says she.

"What shall I call it, mountain fever?" No; Langley said he had mountain fever: mine is not the same kind. Say I've struck it rich in the Black Dwarf? No; the governor will ask for assays, and want to organize a company; no company wanted here. No; I'll give it to 'em straight; say that things are rotten, rotten as the devil; but I'm not the man for a committee of one to investigate Manager Bingham's administration. Let them discover the reason for themselves; they wouldn't believe mine if I gave it. I have told them there's a miners' war toward, and the time is not good for investigations."

Again Darcie spoke aloud, using, I regret to say, a strong expression in regard to the letter which he held in his hand. He flung it on the table:

"Why in thunder didn't I send it the minute it was written? The information in it be-ongs to the company. Is it theirs—is it mine? It's on my conscience that it ought to go. The amount of systematic robbery, and lying, and corrupting of the company's agents, that's gone on here is almost too picturesque for belief. I wonder what they would have put up on me if I had come announced as the company's representative authorized to make a report? I should have succumbed a little more previously, that's all. I should have looked at her and tendered my resignation on the spot. A curious fatality that we've both been here about the same time, and I never saw her till last night—

I mean two nights ago. It is an age, yet it is the very present moment that I live in. Hang the letter! How can I send it after our little talk about her troubles? I will trust you with all my troubles," said she. She shall trust me! If her notorious old parent is to be investigated they must send another man. We're a rum crowd over there. A set of doting grandmamas were wiser. It moves me to tears and laughter, the faith that is in us when faith is downright silliness, and the fantastic suspicions that feed upon us whenever suspicion's the wrong card."

Here a sound of footsteps crossing the dump from below was heard. Darcie crouched behind the car and reached for his rifle; he listened sharply till he heard Mike's whistle, then he sang out:

"Are ye there, Moriarty?"
Yes; Mike was there, and he had brought news, of which he disburdened himself together with his bacon, and flour, and pail of lard, and matches, and candles, and coffee. He had, as he said, made a pack-horse of himself.

"I dunno fwhat country this is we're livin' in now," he began in his richest bass, shaking out a reef in his "r-r-s" till the timbers rang. "It's not a free country, be gosh! Call a man a foul name, and bate the loife out av him—that's right! Thim anarchists rounded up wan o' the Caltrap boys in town last evenin', and settled wid him for a shcab and a traitor. The gyards found him at daybreak, and tilphoned to the manager, and word come down he was to be sint up to the hospital on a han'-eyar. Tree av the Caltrap boys shoved him up the track, and as they was bringin' the eyar back the union min set upon them, and mishandled them, and two got away and wan was left on the track wid the sinse knocked out av him. And the mine shoved its guns to purtect its mine whilst they was fetchin' him in, and the women began to screech that the mine was frin' on the town. And all the bigmouths was talkin', and I think the crisis has come. And that scriptur' they nailed upon the door outside, that manes business, Darcie dear. 'Tis a small private matter, but I think they'll be lookin' after us pretty soon."

"Why do you say 'us,' Mike? Your name is not in it."

"I'm in whatever my pardner's in. But here's the quarest go, and, by the cross, I dunno fwhat to make av it! I'm none so fond o' the nayborhood av the Big Horn, but it's the shortest way, and the boys is mostly in town on this racket I was tellin' ye, so I snaked along up the track, and as I was steppin' up the thrail by the manager's house, a nate little girl foregathered wid me."

"Is this Mike McGowan?" says she. "It's bound to be Mike," said I, 'whin a purty girl is passin' the word.' I'm thinkin' 't was Abby Steers that's housekeepin' for Misher Bingham, but I thought her a good bit older than this wan. But ye niver can tell; they make themselves what age they please."

"Has that pardner of yours, Jack Darcie, has he left?" says she. "He has not," says I. 'For why should he leave?'"

"I heard he got notice, that's all," says she. 'There's a lady wants to see him if he hasn't skipped; but she can't go to him, and it'll not be healthy for him to come where she is, if anybody happens to see him.'"

ACTS OF HEROISM.

Often Performed by These of Humble Birth.

Acts of heroism were not wanted in the horrors of the fire in the charity bazaar in Paris. While the flame was sweeping through the mass of delicate, lightly-clad women, and the burning tar was raining down on them, there were men and women who remained calm, thinking of others instead of themselves.

A window was opened in the wall. The wife of the academician, Heredia, saw it and urged her daughter toward it. The girl pushed her mother forward. An old woman of the poorer class, named Surraut, had reached the chair before the window. She drew back and forced them to escape in her place. She was carried out later cruelly burned, and when asked why she gave up her chance said:

"They loved each other so much! I could not see them die."

One royal princess was present—Duchesse d'Aleucon. She was the chief patroness of the charity, and when they would have carried her out of the flames, she drew behind a stall, saying:

"Our guests must go first."

Among those who carried out the burning victims at the risk of their own lives were two scullions from the hotel, a poor cab-driver, a plumber and a street-sweeper. These men worked encircled by sweeping rings of fire and covered with frightful burns.

We very naturally explain the heroism of the high-born lady by saying that the feeling that she must be brave and courteous even in death had come down to her through generations of chivalrous ancestors. But how did it come to the scullion and the street-sweeper? What, after all, makes the hero? Not familiarity with danger, for Sir Colin Campbell, after years of brave fighting, never drew his sword without losing color.

Most of us would like to stand for one glorious moment as heroes in the eyes of a watching world. But no spell has ever been found which will command the moment or the high courage to meet it. There are humbler virtues which we can master, and opportunities for them are always ready.

After all, a little candle burning every night through the slowly-passing years makes as much light in the house as a lightning flash once in a lifetime.—Youth's Companion.

Popularity.

The late bishop of Wakefield (the popular Dr. How) a few years ago modestly told a pleasant story of the progress of a bishop winning his way to the hearts of his people. When he first became bishop-suffragan of East London in 1878 the sight of his gaitered legs set one East-ender asking another:

"What's that?"

Answer—"A bishop."

A year later it was:

"Who's that?"

Answer—"The bishop."

Before he left London for Wakefield the answer was:

"Why, don'tcher know, that's our bishop."—Tit-Bits.

SAVED AN AMERICAN ARMY.

The Descendants of a New England Heroine Meet Annually to Testify to Her Bravery.

The memory of a woman who prevented the command of Gen. Sullivan from being massacred by Indians in 1799 has just been honored by a celebration in the town of Coleville, near Binghamton, N. Y., by her descendants. On the farm of Thomas Taylor, in the town of Coleville, stands a tumble-down log cabin. The cabin originally was the property of Zedekiah Hamlin, who, with his family, came to this section from Connecticut before the breaking out of the revolution. The valley was a meeting place for the Indians, and while the tribes were all friendly, Mr. Hamlin, with an eye to the necessity for possible future defense, built his house like a miniature fort. One daughter, Dorothy, was known far and wide among the red inhabitants of the valley as "Wachita," the song bird. If a papoose was ill she would visit the lodge, sometimes traveling miles on foot or horseback to administer simple remedies and croon it to sleep. Thus she gained the good will of the red men and was safe at any time of the day or night in the depths of the forest.

This was the state of things when, in 1799, the news was flashed among the tribes in this section that Gen. Sullivan, with troops, was coming down the valley to avenge the Cherry valley massacre, and, though the Indians in this vicinity had no hand in it, all would be slain. Night saw the hills in and around Binghamton red with signal fires summoning tribes from all quarters to a conference at the junction of the two rivers. Miss Hamlin had a brother in Sullivan's army, and this was known to a squaw whose baby the girl had saved by careful nursing. At dusk the second day after the "big talk" the squaw crept to the threshold of the Hamlin cabin and whispered to Miss Dorothy that if she wished to save her brother she should warn the white soldiers to avoid the main road at a spot between this city and Union, as a large body of Indians was in ambush there. In order to find him Miss Dorothy must go alone. The brave girl did not hesitate for a moment, but, hastily preparing, she started out with only the stars for a guide. Her travels through the country and contact with the Indians had given her an insight into wood lore that now proved valuable. After 54 hours of continuous travel she reached the outpost of Gen. Sullivan's camp and delivered her message. A company of soldiers was detailed to make a flank movement on the enemy and drive them from ambush. The attack was such a complete surprise to the Indians that they retreated in haste.

Now once a year—on the anniversary of this day—the descendants of Miss Hamlin and a few invited neighbors commemorate the event by a picnic in the woods near the log cabin, and at each gathering the history of the brave act is read. The picnic has been a family tradition among the Hamlins of Binghamton for years, and each member of the family considers it a sacred duty to attend the annual gathering.—Chicago Chronicle.

HIS HEARING DESTROYED.

Lieut. Harrison, of the Oregon, Suffers from Concussion Caused by Firing Big Gun.

Lieut. W. H. Harrison, of Washington, one of the officers of the battleship Oregon when she made the 15,000-mile trip around the Horn, is in the naval hospital in Brooklyn with his hearing almost destroyed.

At the first bombardment of Santiago Lieut. Harrison was in charge of the after 13-inch gun turret on the Oregon. An eight-inch gun was fired directly over his head, and the concussion was so great that the drum of his left ear was broken and his right ear seriously injured. He has a long leave and has made arrangements to undergo a course of treatment with a Manhattan specialist.

"The Oregon," said Lieut. Harrison, "is the bulldog of the American navy. We fellows who were on her in the trip around the Horn had no idea that the whole country thought we might be slaughtered by the Spanish fleet. I tell you she is a wonder, and alone would have given Cervera's fleet a lot of work to do. In the race after the Spanish fleet we began at the tail end and worked up until only the Brooklyn was ahead of us. The Oregon simply went by the Spaniards, peppering every vessel with shells until she got up to the Colon, which was in the lead. In that running battle the Oregon made 16 knots, the record of her trial trip."

PAY OF SOLDIERS WITHHELD.

Gen. Shafter Says It Would Demoralize His Men at Santiago.

A Washington dispatch to the New York Evening Telegram says: "It was the intention of the government to pay the troops at Santiago next week, but, owing to the request of Gen. Shafter, the payment has been indefinitely postponed. A few days ago Secretary Alger cabled Gen. Shafter to the effect that officers would go on the Resolute with more than $1,000,000. The money was sent to New York, and the paymasters had received their orders to sail.

"Gen. Shafter said the men were in no actual need of money, and, in his opinion, $1,000,000 would produce a most demoralizing effect among the 20,000 men under his command.

"The money has been temporarily deposited in the subtreasury at New York."

WILL CRUISE OFF CUBA.

Mrs. Ames, a Wealthy Woman, Chartered a Famous Yacht to Be Near Her Husband.

Mrs. Adelbert Ames, the wealthy wife of Brig. Gen. Ames, now at Santiago, has chartered the famous old cup defender America, which was the property of the late Benjamin F. Butler, and will use the yacht in cruising in Cuban waters.

The America has been thoroughly overhauled and will be ready to leave for the West Indies in four weeks. A desire to be near her husband and two sons, who are now with the United States forces in Cuba, prompted Mrs. Ames to undertake the cruise.

Although nearly 50 years old, the America is said to be stanch and seaworthy. She will be commanded by a capable navigator and will carry a crew of 12 men.

Kaiser Says Spain Should Lose.

The correspondent of a London paper writes the following interesting item: "Spain deserves to lose her empire because she cannot shoot straight," said Emperor William to his British naval guests a few days ago on his royal yacht, the Hohenzollern. Then he added numerous expressions of contempt for her navy and seamen.

She Scored That Time.

"What's that?" said the old gentleman as he entered while the eldest daughter was saying things confidentially to her mother.

"Bess was just telling me that the young man that visited the Broketons last summer has written her, and that he sent love and kisses."

"He did, did he? The impudent puppy. Write him and squelch him at once, or you're no daughter of mine. Let him know so there is no possible chance of misunderstanding that you have the utmost resentment for such conduct, and if he ever comes here again I'll kick him out of the house."

"Well, did you attend to that matter, Bess?" asked the old gentleman at breakfast next morning.

"Yes."

"Good. What did you say?" "I told him distinctly that if he didn't know any better than to send such things in a letter, instead of bringing them in person, I would have to forego the pleasure of his acquaintance."

"The next five minutes the family were terror-stricken under a conviction that the head of the household had burst a blood vessel.—Stray Stories.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES.

The Tendency of the Age Is Toward Mural Decorations.

Probably at no time in the world's history has as much attention been paid to the interior decoration of homes as at present. No home, no matter how humble, is without its handiwork that helps to beautify the apartments and make the surroundings more cheerful. The taste of the American people has kept pace with the age, and almost every day brings forth something new in the way of a picture, a drapery, a piece of furniture or other form of mural decoration. One of the latest of these has been given to the world by the celebrated artist, Muville, in a series of four handsome porcelain game plaques. Not for years has anything as handsome as this been seen. The subjects represented by these plaques are American Wild Ducks, American Pheasant, American Quail and English Snipe. They are handsome paintings and are especially designed for hanging on dining room walls, though their richness and beauty entitled them to a place in the parlor of any home. These original plaques have been purchased at a cost of $50,000 by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., manufacturers of the celebrated Elastic Starch, in order to enable their numerous customers to become possessors of these handsome works of art they have had them reproduced by a special process, in all the rich colors and beauty of the original. They are finished on heavy cardboard, pressed and in the shape of a plaque and trimmed with a heavy band of gold. They measure forty inches in circumference and contain no reading matter or advertisement whatever.

Until September 1st Messrs. J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co. propose to distribute these plaques free to their customers. Every purchaser of three ten-cent packages of Elastic Starch, flat-iron brand, manufactured by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., is entitled to receive one of these handsome plaques free from their grocer. Old and new customers alike are entitled to the benefits of this offer. These plaques will not be sent through the mail, the only way to obtain them being from your grocer. Every grocer store in the country has Elastic Starch for sale. It is the oldest and best laundry starch on the market and is the most perfect cold process starch ever invented. It is the only starch made by men who thoroughly understand the laundry business, and the only starch that will not injure the finest fabric. It has been the standard for a quarter of a century and as an evidence of how good it is twenty-two million packages were sold last year. Ask your dealer to show you the plaques and tell you about Elastic Starch. Accept no substitute. Bear in mind that this offer holds good a short time only and should be taken advantage of without delay.

TO MRS. PINKHAM

From Mrs. Walter E. Budd, of Pat-chogue, New York.

Mrs. Budd, in the following letter, tells a familiar story of weakness and suffering, and thanks Mrs. Pinkham for complete relief:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I think it is my duty to write to you and tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I feel like another woman. I had such dreadful headaches through my temples and on top of my head, that I nearly went crazy; was also troubled with chills, was very weak; my left side from my shoulders to my waist pained me terribly. I could not sleep for the pain. Plasters would help for a while, but as soon as taken off, the pain would be just as bad as ever. Doctors prescribed medicine, but it gave me no relief.

"Now I feel so well and strong, have no more headaches, and no pain in side, and it is all owing to your Compound. I cannot praise it enough. It is a wonderful medicine. I recommend it to every woman I know."

Hopper Spins a "Pinafore" Yarn.

Some years ago, when the "Pinafore" craze was at its height, the actor who impersonated Sir Joseph Porter during a production of that opera at the Varieties theater, New Orleans, had a make-up which transformed him into an exact facsimile of Admiral Murray of the United States navy, who was then stationed at New Orleans. One night an old salt of Murray's command was sitting in the front row of the gallery. When Sir Joseph Porter made his first entrance, he gazed upon him for a moment as if doubting the evidence of his senses, and then muttered to himself sotto voce, "I'm blest if that isn't old Murray."

Rising from his seat and making a sea scrape, he called out, "Good day, your honor." The special officer was going to eject him, but the manager of the house, who had observed him, forbade it and told the officer to let the old fellow enjoy himself to his heart's content so long as he did not become so boisterous as to disturb the performance. Whenever Sir Joseph came on or went off the stage, the old salt would rise and honor him with a salute, and after the fall of the curtain he proposed and gave three cheers for Admiral Murray. A naval lieutenant who was present subsequently told me that when the old fellow went on board his ship next day he had to be put in irons for refusing to obey an order from his superior officer unless that functionary would follow the example of the gallant captain of the "Pinafore" and say, "If you please."—De Wolf Hopper in New York Herald.

Bathing Suit of 1894.

Though the woman with a well filled purse can indulge in the luxury of a silk bathing costume, the greater number of the fair sex at the shore will frolic with old Neptune in suits of all wool flannel. These may be made very plain or may be trimmed with great taste.

The neatest suits seen in the stores are made with full skirts and have knee-tights and full tights to match. Sandals and odd knitted or rubber caps come with these suits, which are made in black, navy, cardinal, maroon, gray and white. Black, white and red worsted braids in different widths are used as trimming, and this garniture can be put on in exceedingly pretty effects. Cuffs and sailor collar of red or white flannel on blue or black suits are very stylish, although some beautiful models are made with box plaited waists, with the skirt, wrists and down turn collar trimmed with two or three rows of narrow white or red worsted braid.

The best suits range in price from $4.50 to $7. These are for ladies, the suits for children costing between $4 and $6.25.—Philadelphia Record.
